Hello Eline,

I'm sorry that it has taken me a while to respond, however today I'm working from home and have found your email again.

Prior to giving birth to my daughter 22 years ago my bust size was a well rounded 34B and I was a size 8. All that changed when my body went from an 8 to a 16 and bust size 44DD! In the ten years since my 40th birthday I have remained a size 10 with a bust size of 34 inches. My bust never went back to the pre-baby and nicely rounded, and as I'm approaching 50 I wanted to have a bit more shape without invasive implants or gels.

Earlier this year I researched into the herbal tablets from Erdic and probably like most initial readers wondered just how much they would 'transform' my bust and went ahead with the first three-month purchase. Ten tablets a day is the requirement for the effect to notice; you quickly get into a routine of taking four in the morning, three with lunch and three with dinner, and within four weeks I began to see a difference in my bust.

You have to be realistic with your expectations; I was not expecting to go from 34A to 34C, all I was looking for was a fuller shape, and that's what I got. I also noticed that the skin between my breasts was smoother and when I wore a push up bra the breasts appeared more rounded, rather than two half empty skin sacks being given a lift by a push-up bra!

I would estimate that Erdic produces better results for small breasted women like me, as our expectations are realistic and we are delighted when a positive change happens and people start to notice. My new bust size suits my size 8 figure and I am more confident about going topless on the beach. I am onto my second three month course and would I recommend Erdic to women? Yes I would.
